

Academic Advising

Students will receive individual guidance and support from our professional team of advisors. Working together with the student, advisors help design an individualized study plan with the end goal of helping them to make a smooth and successful transition to University academic life. The advisor will guide the student in selecting the required and elective courses to satisfy their program requirements.

Global Citizenship Program

The Global Citizenship Program (GCP) is the cornerstone of Webster University's liberal arts curriculum. The GCP addresses diversity, global engagement, and social responsibility as compelling educational and institutional priorities that help students take up the cultural and economic challenges of today's global world. The aim of the GCP is to create settings that foster students' sense of responsibility as local and global citizens.

Advanced Placement

In some circumstances students are awarded advanced placement which is dependent upon their International/ European secondary school achievements. For example, the International Baccalaureate, Dutch VWO, American AP and the UK A-levels may provide up to one year of advanced placement, possibly reducing our four year undergraduate program to three years.

Housing

Students will experience a supportive environment by living in our university managed residence, the Living and Learning Center (LLC). Shared and single rooms with private facilities are available 100 steps from the academic building, providing convenient access to all facilities and services.

Meet our Students

Noelle Palmer

Program: BA International Business and Management Studies
Current Employer: Spencer Stuart

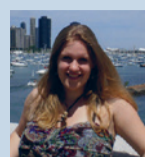

"One of the key aspects I appreciated most about the Business program at Webster was the fact that most of my professors were professionals themselves. Theory was strengthened with live examples through their expertise allowing us to enter the business world in a balanced manner. I am currently still going strong at the same Global Executive Search Firm I did my internship with during my time at Webster!"

Rosabelle Illes

"What I enjoyed most during my time at Webster is the universities' international DNA. The teachers, the students and the staff come from different parts of the globe, and they all bring their diverse perspectives into classroom and on campus". Rosabelle went on to Leiden University to get her Masters in Social and Organizational Psychology and is currently pursuing her PhD.

"I decided to study at Webster not only because of my ambition to become a successful entrepreneur, but also to become a well-informed and cultured individual. The Liberal Arts degree at Webster allowed me to pursue my educational interest in business while giving me the opportunity to broaden my knowledge on subjects in Psychology, Media, Arts and International Relations. It also offered me the opportunity to study in the several different Webster campuses worldwide."

Eduardo Boot

"Webster University also offers a truly international degree. During my time at Webster I have travelled the world. I went to New York for a Model United Nations class. I went to St. Louis (Webster's home campus) for an internship, and to Webster Thailand to study there for a semester. As an international business and international relations student it is vital to experience the cultures a student would otherwise only read about. Webster University opens your eyes to a vastly big world, waiting to be explored."
